W. Pakistani army takes over in Dacca

NEW DELHI (AP)—East Pakistani rebels were reported holding out at various points today, but the West Pakistani army appeared to be in control of Dacca, the provincial capital.

The rebel radio claimed that fighting was continuing in Dacca, in the port city of Chittagong and in the towns of Rangpur and Khulna. But the government's Radio Pakistan said the situation in the eastern province was returning to normal, with all government employees returning to work today, banks reopening and the curfew in Dacca lifted from 7 a.m. to 5 p.m.

The rebel and government radios were the only remaining sources of news from the Bengali half of Pakistan since all foreign correspondents were expelled from Dacca over the weekend. But Associated Press correspondent Arnold Zeitlin reported on his arrival in Ceylon Sunday from Dacca that the government troops were in full control of the provincial capital.

Zeitlin said between 5,000 and 7,000 persons were believed killed in fighting Friday and Saturday. Sheikh Mujibur Rahman, the Bengali political leader who had been campaigning to end West Pakistan's control of the eastern province, was reported in army custody. Thousands fled the city, Zeitlin said.

Joe Schlesinger, a Canadian Broadcasting Corp. correspondent, also reported that "the army was clearly in control" when he left Dacca early Saturday.

"If there is any challenge to the army's rule," Schlesinger said in Vancouver, "it's probably coming from the small towns in the countryside and it may take years before the Bengali army can even hope to challenge the Pakistani army successfully."

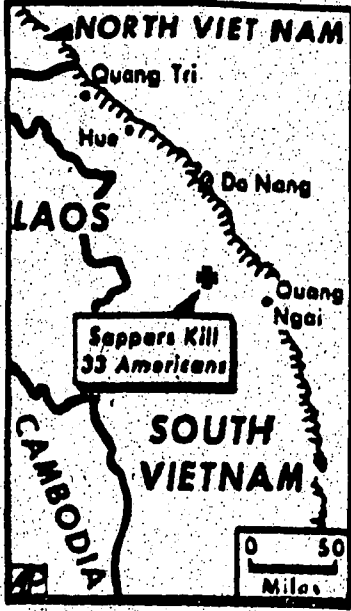

He said East Pakistani support of Sheikh Mujib's Awami League, the province's political party, "is absolutely unbelievable."

He said he did not think the "thrust for Bengali independence or Bengali autonomy" would die out, but "I don't think they have enough arms at the moment to do anything about the army's power."

The 10 million Bengalis of West Pakistan are geographically divided from the 50 million Punjabis and other peoples of West Pakistan by more than 1,000 miles of Indian territory; the chief link between them is their common Moslem religion. Although the East Pakistanis outnumber the West Pakistanis, the latter have always dominated the central government and the army and thus controlled the country.

When the Awami League won a majority in the new National Assembly in elections in December, the Bengali nationalists headed by Sheikh Mujib vowed to write a new constitution providing provincial autonomy.

The sheik launched a successful campaign of civil disobedience in Dacca early this month and in effect took over the provincial government. Although martial law had been proclaimed, the army held back while President Agha Mohammed Yahya Kahn negotiated in Dacca with Mujib and West Pakistan's chief political leader, Zulfikar Ali Bhutto. But the president flew back to Karachi Friday, and military command moved its troops from West Pakistan out of their barracks to smash the nationalist rebellion.

SAPPERS HIT U.S. BASE

Map locates site where enemy sappers attacking under cover of a mortar barrage hit a U.S. artillery base south of Da Nang Sunday, killing 33 U.S. troops and wounding 76. The casualties were the highest suffered by a U.S. unit in more than two years. (AP Photofax)

76 wounded in sapper attack

33 Americans killed in raid

SAIGON (AP)—North Vietnamese sappers ran through a U.S. artillery base in the jungle south of Da Nang early Sunday, killing 33 Americans and wounding 76 within an hour. It was believed to be the highest American death toll of the war in an attack on a U.S. installation.

The U.S. Command reported 12 of the sappers were killed, some of them inside the base and some by helicopter and C119 gunships.

Much of the base was overrun, but it remained in American control today. "Extensive action is being conducted in the area," the U.S. Command said.

There was a general stepup in enemy action, much of it in the Da Nang region. U.S. officers said the North Vietnamese and Viet Cong were taking advantage of the dark of the moon—"there is always higher enemy activity about this time because it's easier for the enemy to get into position without being detected," one officer said.

Viet Cong sappers raided a resettlement village 25 miles south of Da Nang early today, killing 13 South Vietnamese, wounding 21 and burning 100 houses. Twenty-five 100-pound rockets hit the Da Nang Air base and the nearby Marble Mountain air facility, damaging a few planes and helicopters and wounding several Americans. Enemy gunners also shelled the headquarters of the U.S. American Division at Chu Lai, south of Da Nang, but no casualties or damage was reported.

Allied defenses in the region south of Da Nang have been generally weakened by the continuing withdrawal of U.S. Marines from the war and by the base 50 miles south of Da Nang began about 2 a.m. with a barrage of 50 to 60 mortar rounds that pinned down the less than 400 Americans defending the base.

"They put in some mortar rounds and our people took cover," said one American field officer. "There were sappers going through the place throwing satchel charges into our bunkers and firing positions. The sappers swept across the base and dropped the charges as they went across. They did most of the damage."

"We had no intelligence the attack was going to take place," one American field commander said.

Allied defenses in the region south of Da Nang have been generally weakened by the continuing withdrawal of U.S. Marines from the war and by the movement of U.S. and South Vietnamese forces to the north-west for the operation in southern Laos. Although the operation ended last Wednesday, U.S. forces are still trying to withdraw from blocking positions on the Vietnamese side of the border. They are being harassed daily by North Vietnamese attacks.

According to available records for the past four years, the heaviest previous American toll in such an attack was 32 killed and 31 wounded when sappers hit Fire Base Henderson 17 miles south of the demilitarized zone on May 6, 1970. However, 19 South Vietnamese were killed and 40 were wounded in the attack.

Elsewhere in the war—Heavy antiaircraft fire and fog forced cancellation of a South Vietnamese commando raid today on a major North Vietnamese headquarters in the Laotian panhandle south of the area invaded by the Saigon troops during their recent operations across the border.

U.S. helicopters were to drop more than 200 South Vietnamese troops to "inflict maximum casualties, then get back out," while U.S. helicopter gunships provided close air cover. But the raid was called off when massive U.S. air strikes failed to suppress enemy antiaircraft fire, and fog mixed with dust from the bombs sharply reduced visibility.

The U.S. Command reported two more American helicopters shot down in the aftermath of the Laotian operation, one in southern Laos and the other on the Vietnamese side of the border. One crewman was wounded in the two crashes.

Expect China to hike deliveries

Hanoi to get more weapons?

WASHINGTON (AP)—U.S. officials expect China will step up its weapons deliveries to Hanoi this year in view of North Vietnam's losses from allied strikes at her Laos and Cambodia supply areas.

The officials do not anticipate Peking will include troops in its expanded military aid, since the fighting is well away from the Chinese border and North Vietnam has shown no shortage of manpower.

Chinese arms assistance to North Vietnam last year is estimated to have totaled some $85 million, roughly a tenth of Hanoi's overall military and economic help from communist countries.

The comparable 1968 and 1969 figures are estimated at about $100 million. Last October Peking announced a renewed aid agreement with Hanoi, giving no figures, and early this month it issued a tough-sounding communique following Premier Chou En-lai's visit to Hanoi accompanied by Chinese military men.

The Soviet Union is North

Vietnam's largest supplier in terms of oil and of such expensive, sophisticated items as antiaircraft missiles and communications equipment.

The bulk of Chinese arms aid to North Vietnam is in lighter weapons important in the ground combat of the Indochina war.

Peking's shipments range from machine guns, recoilless rifles and antiaircraft guns to mortars, rocket launchers and grenades plus ammunition. Her military deliveries also include uniforms and field gear.

U.S. officials figure an expanded arms flow from China will include mostly more of the same items, but they do not rule out some new ones.

One weapon Peking could provide is a heavy 130-millimeter gun with a range of some 16 miles. The South Vietnamese last week reported heavy artillery of this range firing from the demilitarized zone. Washington informants said they did not know who supplied those guns to Hanoi.

Judge may ask help for Calley panel

FT. BENNING, Ga. (AP)—Judge Reid Kennedy said today he will rule Tuesday on whether he will ask Lt. William Calley's murder trial jury if it needs help in its deliberations. "Anything I do at this point certainly is dangerous," the judge said.

The jury was in the 13th day of deliberations today and showing no signs of being near a verdict.

"The government can sit here forever... business as usual, business as usual," defense attorney George Latimer complained. "But what about the accused?"

The prosecutor, Capt. Aubrey Daniel, had warned that to make any inquiries of the jury would have the effect of coercing a verdict.

"We have no indication this jury has difficulty in reaching a verdict," Daniel said. "What we do have here is that they are calmly and rationally deliberating all these issues as you directed."

"They have not indicated they need any assistance. They have not indicated they are having any difficulty. They have not indicated they cannot reach a verdict."

Latimer, 70 years old and for 10 years a judge on the three-man U.S. Military Court of Appeals, said, "If they are not having problems then I don't know what military justice is."

He said that in no previous court-martial had the jury taken as long to make up its mind. "I daresay it's five times as long as any that I can remember."

Judge Kennedy said he could find little legal precedent for a judge asking a jury whether it needs help making up its mind.

He said he has asked the military law library at Bailey's Crossing, Va., to check whether there is any precedent and that he expected the result of the research Tuesday.

"I recognize it's a decision I'll have to make," he said. "I'm inclined to agree with the defense that some inquiry should be made but exactly what kind and the time it should be made, I am undecided at this point."

"I should be in a position to rule sometime tomorrow afternoon," he said. The jury began deliberations today with a request to see logs made of radio transmissions on the day Calley's troops swept into My Lai.

Ship breaks in two

20 crewmen of tanker missing

PORTSMOUTH, Va. (AP)—At least 20 men were missing today from the tanker Texaco Oklahoma, which broke in two in heavy seas about 120 miles northeast of Cape Hatteras, N.C. Eleven crewmen were rescued from a life raft.

Most of the men were from the Port Arthur, Tex., area. The tanker was loaded with 220,000 barrels of oil.

The Coast Guard said it was a mystery why nearly two-thirds of the crewmen apparently didn't escape the sinking ship early Saturday.

It was 36 hours after the 651-foot vessel broke in two in 15-foot seas and winds of 40 to 60 knots before the Coast Guard learned of the tragedy.

The word came in the form of two messages from the Liberian freighter Sasstown saying it had picked up 11 survivors in a life raft.

Both messages, the Coast Guard said, reported 20 crewmen missing—last seen by the survivors as they abandoned the stern section of the 20,084-ton tanker about 5:30 a.m. Sunday.

A Texaco spokesman in Port Arthur said, however, that records showed 42 crewmen aboard.

The Sasstown, en route to New York, sighted the life raft about 4 p.m. Sunday.

The Coast Guard had difficulty learning details of what happened, but a spokesman said one message from the Sasstown quoted the survivors as saying the stern section they abandoned sank half an hour afterward.

They were reported to have said the other crewmen were scattered throughout the rest of the ship, which they saw for the last time at midnight, 18½ hours after they launched the raft. They did not see the rest of the ship sink, nor did they see any other rafts, the Coast Guard said.

By the time the Coast Guard got a plane into the air late Sunday, all it found was a huge oil slick. The pilot, Lt. Cmdr. Patrick H. Cannon, said the Sasstown by then was 145 miles east of Elizabeth City, N.C., in seas running 8 to 10 feet.

Interior Dept. would be manager of vital resources

By STAN BENJAMIN
WASHINGTON (AP)—President Nixon's proposed federal reorganization would, if adopted, convert the Interior Department from an agency traditionally rooted in Western land to a manager of the nation's vital resources.

Land, water, minerals and fuels, the sciences of ocean, atmosphere and earth: All would become the responsibility of the proposed Department of Natural Resources.

The Interior Department already has a hand in these areas but it would, in the reorganization, annex huge areas now governed by other agencies, giving Interior truly national scope and authority for the first time in its 125-year history.

Absorbing the entire present Interior Department, the proposed Department of Natural Resources would receive:

- The Forest Service; Soil Conservation Service; Agricultural and economic research services; and watershed loans program, all from the Department of Agriculture.

- Planning and funding of civil functions from the Army Corps of Engineers.
- Civilian atomic energy development functions from the Atomic Energy Commission.

- All functions of the now-independent Water Resources Council.
- Oil and gas pipeline safety programs from the Department of Transportation.

- The entire National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration, created only last year as a branch of the Commerce Department.

In the process, the Interior Department would swell from its 1971 size of 57,200 employees and a $2 billion yearly budget to some 110,700 employees and an annual $5 billion budget.

The Agriculture Department alone slated for dismantling under the Nixon plan would contribute over 37,000 employees including 21,430 in the Forest Service and 14,419 in the Soil Conservation Service.

The department itself also would be reorganized, realigning its present functions and accommodating new ones.

Operational activities would be divided among five branches:

- Land and Recreation Resources, absorbing functions of the present Assistant Secretary for Fish, Wildlife and Parks; land responsibilities of the present assistant secretary for Public Land Management; and such newly acquired areas as the Forest Service,

- Water resources, based on the present assistant secretary for Water and Power.
- Energy and Mineral Resources, enlarging the role of the present assistant secretary for Mineral Resources to cover the broadened responsibilities in energy, especially atomic development.

- Indian and Territorial Affairs, assigning these responsibilities a separate division of their own and separating them from land management, where they are now consigned.
- Oceanic, Atmospheric and Earth Sciences, combining Interior's present geologic activities with the ocean-atmosphere role to be transferred from the Commerce Department.

Indian programs, Nixon said, would be administered by the Natural Resources Department.

$1 billion unfinished work

U.S. Tuesday will be out of SST business

By VERN HAUGLAND
WASHINGTON (AP)—"On Tuesday, the U.S. will be out of the SST business. That's the day the money runs out."

The speaker is William M. Magruder, director of the office of supersonic transport development for the Department of Transportation.

The SST development package was killed by Congress last week when the Senate followed earlier House action and rejected $134 million in subsidies. That put the federal government out of the SST picture. There may be private financing of the program but, Magruder says, talks so far "have not been very encouraging."

Even though his office won't be working on SST development, it will operate, for awhile. Closing out the program may take up to two years. "No one has ever terminated a $1 billion unfinished business before," Magruder said.

Ending the federal role may include helping sell the American SST development plans to a foreign bidder.

Sunday, Magruder said inquiries have been received from Japan, West Germany and the Middle East. He identified only the Japanese firm, Ataka, a small trading company which has requested the State Department set up a trade mission visit on the matter.

Last week, Magruder was not too optimistic about a foreign reprieve for the development package.

His main concern now, he said, is with the people whose jobs went out with the congressional defeat.

General Electric and Boeing Co. had the contracts, awarded in 1966, to build a pair of 1,800-mile-an-hour prototypes. Layoffs were forecast for each, as well as for subcontractors.

A proposal from Sen. George McGovern, D-S.D., would place the estimated 7,000 Seattle area employees of Boeing who are destined to lose their jobs in a program to build low-cost mass transit.

Speaking on the WABC radio program, "Attention! New York," McGovern said, "I think we have a real responsibility to those aircraft and aerospace workers who will be thrown out of work."

B. G. Veirling, an aide to Magruder, estimated the cost to the government of terminating the SST development will be at least $334 million. Subsidies for nearly a decade had cost the federal government $664 million.

Dike closure to begin Thursday

A local contractor will begin working Thursday on temporary dike closures in eight city locations, John Pullin, sub-area engineer for the Army Corps of Engineers, said this morning.

Winona Excavating, Inc., 5775 6th St., Goodview, was awarded the project Friday and had been originally scheduled to begin today, but Pullin said this morning that he has postponed the project to Thursday.

The city is still setting up a number of pumps at several locations and Pullin said he felt it best to wait a few days so the various work crews wouldn't be getting in each other's way.

Winona Excavating will probably finish the project about the middle of next week, he said. The contractor will use approximately 7,500 cubic yards of material in the eight locations, which Pullin said Friday include seven temporary closures and the construction of a ponding area around a traditional trouble spot near Bay State Milling Co.

Pullin noted this morning that the temporary closures will be built to accommodate an 18.5-foot flood crest, which is now the National Weather Service's predicted crest if the area has an additional inch of moisture.

Should predictions be raised and waters rise above 18.5 feet, he said, additional work will be brought in later to raise the closures.

Pickup truck crashes into utility pole

A local man received minor injuries at 8:37 p.m. Saturday when the pickup truck he was driving went out of control on West 5th Street and struck a power pole.

Ronald P. Mueller, 1765 Monroe St., was hurt slightly but did not require hospitalization, when his 1970 model pickup truck, westbound on 5th at Ben Street, crashed into a power pole 60 feet west of Ben.

CITY ACCIDENT BOX SCORE

Deaths	2	0
Accidents	218	305
Injuries	79	67
Property damage	$101,687	$149,467

Mueller told police officers at the scene that he had swerved to avoid a car on Ben Street and had lost control of his vehicle.

Police listed damage to the truck at $2,000, and at $100 to the power pole.

The only other accident reported over the weekend was a hit-run collision at Broadway and Center Street at 2:30 p.m. Saturday.

Harry S. Dresser, 366 Collegeview, told authorities that his 1970 model pickup truck received $175 damage when it was sideswiped by a light-colored car while he was turning left onto Center northbound from Broadway.

The other driver did not stop, and authorities are searching for him.

Pair escapes serious injury as car rolls

LANESBORO, Minn. (Special) — Two Preston youths escaped with minor scratches, but the car in which they were riding was termed a total loss when it was wrecked Sunday at 7 p.m. on Highway 16, about one mile south of Lanesboro.

Curtis Scheevel, 21, was driving the 1968 car and Richard Mensink was a passenger.

A highway patrolman reported that as Scheevel was headed west toward Preston, he suddenly lost control of the vehicle on a curve, skidded off the shoulder and broke off a power pole. The car rolled over and landed on its top in the ditch.

The accident is still under investigation.

Driver unhurt when car and deer collide

A Lamoille man escaped injury early Sunday when the car he was driving struck a deer in Pleasant Valley, according to Winona County Sheriff Helmer Weinmann.

The accident occurred on CSAH 37, three miles south of Winona, at 1 a.m. Sunday. A deer jumped in front of the southbound 1970 model hardtop driven by Robert E. Steinfeld, Lamoille. The car received $150 damage to the front, Weinmann said.

The sheriff reported today that the deer was not killed by the impact, but was badly injured and had to be destroyed.

State 22nd in taxes

Schumann lauds sales tax, says budget must be cut

ZUMBRO FALLS, Minn. (Special) — Although Minnesotans are complaining about real estate taxes, we are rated as the 22nd highest among the states, Rep. Alfred Schumann, Eyota, said at the Wabasha County Republican convention Saturday evening at the Veterans of Foreign Wars hall here. About 70 persons attended.

Schumann praised the tax relief afforded property owners by the sales and tax reform law passed by the 1967 Legislature. He said that act preserved a competitive business climate in Minnesota. Rep. Schumann also said the proposed 2½-cent gas tax increase, has a 50-50 chance of passing.

Rep. Schumann said the governor's $3 billion plus budget must be cut in as many areas as possible.

On the reapportionment of Congressional districts, Schumann said one of the important criteria was not to cross over county lines. He predicted that there would be little change in Wabasha County's legislative district because there has not been much of a population change in this area.

Lester Howatt, Lake City, was re-elected chairman of the Wabasha County Republican Party.

Others elected to two-year terms: John Boehlke, Plainview, vice chairman; Mrs. Walter Peters, Zumbro Falls, chairwoman; Mrs. Eugene Lutjen, Lake City, vice chairwoman; Earl Hassler, Lake City, treasurer (re-elected), and Mrs. Daisy Pfeiffer, Mazeppa, secretary (re-elected).

William Zenner, Wabasha, was elected as a replacement for alternate delegate to the district and state conventions.

Among resolutions adopted were the following:

Support President Nixon's proposed revenue sharing plan, the president's ABM program and the Nixon policy of continued withdrawal of American troops from Vietnam; to oppose gun registration; support the no-fault auto insurance bill; oppose pari-mutual betting; development of merit rating and pay schedules for teachers; public work projects for able bodied people on welfare; oppose liberalization of the present abortion law; Censure the American Heart

Arcadia youth appointed to West Point

ARCADIA, Wis. (Special) — U.S. Sen. Gaylord Nelson, Wisconsin, has announced the appointment of John Misch, Arcadia, to the U.S. Military Academy. He will begin his military career at West Point on July 1, 1971.

Misch is the second Arcadia youth in recent years to qualify for such an appointment. William Feltes is currently in his third year at the Academy.

Misch, president of the 1971 Arcadia senior class, is the son of Clarence Misch, Arcadia Rt. 3, and the late Martha Misch.

Science winners to enter national

Four first prizes were won by Winona Senior High School and Winona Junior High School students in competition at the annual Southeastern Minnesota Regional Science Fair Saturday at Lea College, Albert Lea, Minn.

Herbert Leifeld, a senior at Winona Senior High School, was a first prize winner and recipient of an Air Force Certificate Award for his chemistry entry, "The Preparation of Polywater." A student of Vernell Jackels, he'll represent Southeastern Minnesota at the International Science Fair in Kansas City, Mo., May 10-14.

Preliminary hearing set on rape charge

A date was set this morning for a preliminary hearing in the aggravated rape and indecent liberties case of a Winona State College student, Michael J. Doody, 24, 119 E. Sanborn St.

The preliminary hearing will be held at 10:30 a.m. next Monday before Winona Municipal Court Judge John D. McGill. Judge McGill this morning also denied a motion by court-appointed defense attorney Kent Gernander to reduce Doody's bond from its present total of $20,000.

Doody is accused of taking indecent liberties with an 18-year-old WSC coed in his apartment on March 17. The aggravated rape charge stems from a separate incident, which is alleged to have occurred with another WSC coed in his apartment Feb. 25.

Gernander asked this morning that preliminary hearings on both charges be held the same day and asked Judge McGill to reduce his client's bond, arguing that the WSC student will be prevented from graduating this spring if held in jail.

Winona County Attorney Julius E. Gernes, who is prosecuting the case, asked that the bonds remain high, noting concern for the safety of the prosecuting witnesses.

Judge McGill denied Gernander's motion, and the bonds remain at $20,000 on the indecent liberties charge and $15,000 on the rape charge.

Plainview entry on environment wins 1st place

PLAINVIEW, Minn. (Special) — Two science students at Plainview High School won recognition with their entries in the 18th annual Southeastern Minnesota Regional Science Fair Friday and Saturday at Lea College, Albert Lea, Minn.

Craig Beyer, 16, son of Mr. and Mrs. Martin Beyer, Plainview, won first place in the environmental sciences category with his showing of "The Chemical Effect of Sewage on a Small Stream."

A junior at Plainview High School, Craig received a blue ribbon, the Lea College award and the U.S. Air Force award.

He was chosen as one of the top 17 out of 27 entries, to represent his school at the Minnesota State Science Fair, April 1-3, at the Pick-Niccollet Hotel, Minneapolis.

Chris Carter, son of Mrs. William Carter, Plainview, and the late William Carter, earned a red ribbon with his exhibit, "Moog Synthesizer," an electrical apparatus used to manufacture synthetic sound.

By performing various chemical tests on water samples collected along a small stream south of Plainview, Craig, first place winner, was able to determine to some extent the devastating effects of sewage on this small stream. Plainview sewage effluent is dumped into this stream, near its source, and eventually finds its way to the Whitewater River system.

Dennis Brinkman is the science instructor at Plainview High School for both of the youths.

Gov. Lucey, Sen. Nelson urge support for Hardie

INDEPENDENCE, Wis. (Special) — Trempealeau - Jackson County Democrats gathered at St. Peter & Paul Catholic School here Saturday for the second time in less than six months, to attend a testimonial dinner for a candidate to the Wisconsin Assembly.

This time it was for Keith Hardie, Town of Franklin, who once was the majority leader in Madison before he was appointed a U.S. marshal, a post he held for eight years.

Approximately 275 heard Gov. Patrick J. Lucey speak for the candidacy of Keith Hardie in the special election on April 6 for the seat vacated by John Radcliffe, who Gov. Lucey appointed safety director in the transportation department, last year.

Lucey dwelt at length on his proposed budget and funding of the budget in the next biennium. Lucey said he was pleased with the budget he submitted but "the budget is not a matter of choice."

"When you have more than 100,000 unemployed, when welfare rolls are overflowing, when the yield of our tax system falls below projections, when there is a net loss of 10 million dollars in last year's corporate taxes — when you inherit that kind of a situation, it calls for austerity."

"We have no choice," Lucey said, "but to change our priorities in this country. And until we do, essential state services are going to be painful. We're going to have to stretch every dollar we spend."

"It's not a happy situation. In addition we must ask for 177 million more dollars. But that's the situation we found ourselves in when we were elected in November. Therefore, the key word in the tax package is 'reform.'"

Sen. Gaylord Nelson spoke briefly about the governorship before he left for another engagement in Eau Claire. Rep. John Radcliffe, Strum, introduced the governor.

Master of ceremonies Edward F. Kullig, Independence, introduced special guests seated at the head table: John Misch, Arcadia, who recently received an appointment to the U.S. Military Academy at West Point, and his father, Clarence Misch; Assemblyman Louie Mato and wife, Eau Claire; Trempealeau County Democratic Party Chairman Margaret O'Brien, Arcadia; Tom Stodol-

Given probation on guilty plea to theft charge

A Decatur, Ga., man pleaded guilty to a felony theft charge in Winona County District Court this morning and received a three-year probation term from Judge Glenn E. Kelley.

William T. Segred, 24, had been charged with theft by check in connection with a pair of incidents in the city Oct. 2, 1970, but County Attorney Julius E. Gernes today reduced the charge to obtaining money by false representation and Segred, accompanied by Rochester attorney A. M. Keith, pleaded guilty.

Judge Kelley placed Segred on probation and ordered him to return to his home in Georgia, establishing a list of strict terms for his probation.

Special class relocation is opposed

Concern over the possibility that several special education classes might be moved to a new location next year was expressed by members of the Washington - Kosciusko School Parent Senate at a meeting last week.

Principal Carroll L. Lehman said that the group felt that the children should be retained at Washington - Kosciusko on grounds that "they like the school and other children benefit from their contacts with the retarded child."

This was the second meeting of the month for the senate and 45 minutes were devoted to discussion during which problems were identified, plans formulated and an agenda for the meeting was developed.

Lehman and the school counselor, Jerry Dolenz, participated in the second half of the meeting during which topics were clarified and possible solutions to problems discussed.

One of the major topics was bus transportation and the senate agreed that certain standards of behavior for children riding school buses and a more definite bus procedure is needed.

Also considered was the use of the playground at noon. It was agreed that too many students are in the confined area and this results in hazardous conditions. A closed noon hour and other possible solutions were considered but no final recommendation was made.

Chapter awards announced by Lewiston FFA

LEWISTON, Minn. (Special) — Jeff Rupprecht and Steve Vertheim received the highest Lewiston High School Future Farmers of America awards at the annual banquet.

Rupprecht, son of Mr. and Mrs. Everett Rupprecht, was named Chapter Star Farmer based on his swine enterprise. He has two Hampshire boars, 12 growers, six replacement gilts and eight sows, and has been active in showing swine and judging.

Vertheim, son of Mr. and Mrs. Kermit Vertheim, received the Outstanding Star Sophomore award. He has two sows, four gilts and 13 piglets for a net worth of $740.

Other members receiving recognition were Alan Kreidermacher, dairy management; Dan Kalmes, swine management; Dan Reinholdt, poultry management; Brian Degnan, public speaking; Karl Kronebusch, Creed speaking; Jeff Rupprecht, Scholarship award; and Kevin Kronebusch and Randy Kukowski, leadership awards.

Kris Lindemann was crowned as the 1971-72 Chapter Sweetheart.

Harlan Kronebusch, father of the chapter president, Kevin Kronebusch, Claire Rice, manager of the Lewiston Co-op Oil Association, and Jerry Williams, principal of the High School, were honored for their contributions to the chapter.

Students select name for new school building

WHITEHALL, Wis. (Special) — Sunset Memorial is the name of the new school building being erected west of the Sunset elementary school in Whitehall.

The name was chosen by a vote of students at Memorial High School Thursday. Five names were voted upon: West Glen, West View, Heritage, Vocational and Arts Center, and Sunset Memorial.

The new building is expected to be completed about May 1. Portions have been occupied by classes since the first of the year. The building will accommodate industrial arts, agriculture, vocal and instrumental music, and business education classes, all to be moved from Memorial High School. There will also be an auditorium, seating 500, which can be divided into three teaching stations.

Public service isn't always easy

Last Thursday night's session of the City Planning Commission illustrates rather clearly the agonizing kinds of dilemmas faced now and then by citizens engaged in public service. Since public service frequently involves making decisions or choices in which some are winners and others losers, the lot of deciders or choosers all too often is to incur the antagonism of some faction or another.

Thursday night's issue was one of the classic collisions between the improvement plans of a somewhat impersonal organization and the interests of various individual citizens. It was the planning commission's task to try to resolve conflicts and to recommend a course of action to the City Council.

As the result of previous meetings, hearings and postponements, the original proposals of the College of Saint Teresa for street closure have been modified somewhat. Notable additions are the extra provisions for reducing some of the annoyances that the new plan might create for nearby residents.

An apparent effort has been made by college planners to meet the previous objections that such changes would cause new traffic problems, increase truck traffic on nearby streets, congest parking and raise the day and night noise levels around the campus periphery. Most of the complaints seem to stem from the irritation that always seems to exist to some degree between such institutions and the neighborhoods they inhabit.

These are legitimate questions, of course, and the planning commission eventually decided that the answers were adequate. Majority spokesmen pointed out eloquently that institutions such as these are highly valuable to a community in many respects, economic as well as others, and argued generally that solutions reasonably satisfactory to all appear possible.

And so it went. Not everyone was happy, as one or two commissioners ruefully noted later. Reaching the decision wasn't easy and was in fact almost painful. But the public was served — arguably perhaps but conscientiously for certain — by its appointed and unpaid representatives. Somehow, we think, everything is going to come out all right, thanks to their concern and dedication. — F.R.U.

A way to ease the doctor shortage

That's a pretty good idea a couple of Michigan medical students worked out to help smaller towns secure badly-needed physicians.

The proposal is simple: that the community lend a student money enough to get through medical school and the student repays the loan by practicing for a specified time in the community after graduation. Some interest in the plan already has been indicated by Michigan and Indiana communities.

There are other obvious advantages. One is that it could get a qualified student through school who otherwise might not make it for lack of adequate resources. And a community has a chance to make an impression on the young doctor so that he might wind up as a permanent resident.

The cost of getting through medical school is anything but peanuts. It averages about $6,000 a year and the student is in school or training for 10 years or more. One can only guess at the number of potential physicians and surgeons who are denied the opportunity to enter the profession because of these towering costs.

Such a plan ought to work in Minnesota as well as anywhere else, given the proper safeguards for all concerned. It might be especially fitting as the state begins to expand facilities for training general practitioners and thereby raising the arbitrary limits on incoming students that previously were imposed by the university medical school. — F.R.U.

What kind of river is it, anyway?

Since the Wisconsin Department of Natural Resources began its campaign to enforce anti-pollution regulations on state waters, some eight towboat captains have been cited for operating boats without the required holding tanks for toilet wastes.

There has now been a response to these actions by owners of 14 towboat and barge companies. It is not exactly heartwarming, however.

Instead of agreeing to get their boats into compliance and, perhaps, asking time extensions for the required work, the barge companies have gone to court to fight the whole business. They have filed for a restraining order in federal district court and are challenging the state's right to enforce its regulation on interstate waters.

A very enlightened course of action indeed. It makes one wonder whether the river is supposed to be merely a combination sewer and a commercial canal or whether it ought to be a great multipurpose natural resource, existing and maintained for the benefit of several million ordinary Americans who like to fish, swim, operate pleasure boats or merely live near its shores. — F.R.U.

SST turndown is called a retreat

WASHINGTON — To many, a fear of a return to the concept of "Fortress America"—a walled China of the 20th Century—has been a recurring nightmare banished when daylight came. The somber reality is that it is a nightmare no longer. Rather, in harsh realism, it is now a real possibility.

For the first time in history a great power is, through its legislative body and a powerful and articulate public minority, deliberately throwing away its obligations of leadership to adopt deliberate weakness as a national policy. This nation is well on the road to a withdrawal from the facts of life—the long-ago discredited vision by which the old isolationists nearly allowed Hitler and Imperial Japan to destroy the Western world.

These are extreme words, yes; but we are in an extremity of peril, and softer words will not suffice any more. When both houses of Congress consciously put this country into the posture of a third-rate power in the skies—below the Soviet Union on the one side and the British-French tandem on the other side—they do more than merely destroy a thing known as the supersonic transport.

Standing alone, the rejection of the SST is by any standard bad news enough. For nearly a billion dollars already put into SST goes down the drain along with irreplaceable skills and the men who have provided these skills. Too, we have cast away a giant aircraft which, readily adaptable to military use in crisis, would have been capable of immensely accelerating the mobility of American troops.

(Does anybody remember that whole divisions were ferried in safety across the Atlantic during the Second World War by the vast British passenger liners Queen Elizabeth and Queen Mary because, for all their bulk, they could outrun the Nazi U-boats that were then smashing our ordinary sea transport?) But far above all these considerations is the cumulative effect here of the action of a Congress fatally bent upon notifying the world that Uncle Sam has now become Little Sammie. (There are, of course, perfectly rational exceptions — men who voted against SST with the honest consistency with which they also vote against other, and infinitely

Much to learn

An editorial in Milwaukee Sentinel

About American involvement in the war in South Vietnam, which was limited in everything but duration:

The 18 year olds who will be eligible to vote in the presidential election next year were only 7 years old when President Kennedy sent the first combat troops into Vietnam, and were doubtless too young to be taking notice of public issues when President Johnson was escalating American involvement.

It would behoove 17 year olds today to begin informing themselves on how America drifted and then plunged into the war during the 1960s. To cast an intelligent vote, it will not be enough merely to be familiar with the record of the last two or three years, during which America's direct involvement was being ended.

William S. White

more popular, spending programs.)

What happened to SST, in a word, must be seen in context if one is to understand the immeasurable harm this decision has done to the national interest.

On the day of the Senate vote, for one illustration, the policy council of the Democratic party — elected by nobody but itself — set out to force Congress to cut off funds to support all American military operations in Indochina after the arbitrary date of Dec. 31, 1971. This was done regardless of what may then be the military situation and without heed to the question of clear usurpation of the President's constitutional powers and responsibility as Commander-in-Chief for the safety of our own troops.

Again, we hear of American troops in the field refusing orders to engage the enemy and not suffering so much as a slap on the wrist.

Whatever the undoubted shortcomings of the Nixon Administration in handling the SST affair, there will one day be more than enough blame to be shared.

For a great opposition party can exhibit precisely one presidential possibility who has steadfastly refused to join those who wish to make this a little, a timid — and, yes, a craven—America. This man (and his record may also be his political epitaph) is Senator Henry Jackson of Washington.

Colombia faces difficulties

BOGOTA, Colombia — When the indomitable Bolivar first freed this great country from Spain it included, in addition to Colombia, Venezuela, Ecuador and Panama. The famous Liberator settled into what is still the presidential palace, a jewel of 18th-century Spanish architecture that even now delightedly maintains the bedroom from which Bolivar escaped would-be assassins while his mistress held them at bay.

It was only later, as a disappointed, embittered man, that Bolivar contemplated the continental uprising he had led and decided gloomily: (South) "America is ungovernable. He who serves the revolution ploughs the sea." Few today are so bleakly pessimistic but the current President, Misael Pastrana Borrero, is aware of the potential explosiveness of new dangers building up in his perplexed land.

Colombia is notable for the highest birthrate in South America, its lengthy two-ocean coastline, its occasional "rebel priests," a two-party political system and the excellence of its presidents since the last military dictatorship ended 14 years ago.

Pastrana is typical of this excellence. An elegant former lawyer and diplomat who served as ambassador in Washington, he lives in the romantic Casa de Bolivar, protected by a mestizo guard with spiked, old-fashioned Prussian helmets. And the problems facing him are perhaps even more formidable than those which brought the Liberator to despair.

"EVERY 22 years at the present growth rate we double our population," the President says. "This causes mounting difficulties in edu-

Train trip to Rome an ordeal

William F. Buckley

ROME — Having business in Rome I thought, I thought to go there by sleeping-car from Montreux, my wife having endorsed the conveyance as exemplary after using it a few weeks ago. I booked a double stateroom, inasmuch as my wife and I together with paraphernalia tend to overflow; and as we set out by car from Montreux, I thought our gesture particularly appropriate on the very day that the House of Representatives in Washington would decide the fate of supersonic travel.

We waited on the platform as a turbulent sky blackened over the still and misty lake that stretches 80 miles from Geneva to Montreux. The train pulled in dead on schedule at 19:05, as they call 7:05 P.M. in these parts, and we boarded. In the bustle of bags and porters and ticket-showing, the darkness of the sleeping car was unremarkable, but as the train slid out I lightheartedly asked the steward, who was wrestling with the bags while holding a mini-flashlight in his mouth, when he would the lights go on? He mumbled, like a patient trying to communicate to his dentist, something that sounded awfully like "When we get to Rome." He led us then to a minuscule cabin, the upper and lower bunks already made up, and heaved the bags onto the overhead rack until there was no more room, so that the last two were dumped on the floor, leaving the lower bunk to sit on provided you crouched forward at a 45-degree angle, else you bumped into space preempted by the upper bunk.

The steward explained that because of a recent strike in Rome the electrical system had not been repaired, and because of an administrative oversight we had not got the second cabin, and the car was full. I asked him in choked accents which way was the restaurant car, and he said there is no restaurant car on this train, hasn't been for three years, but that when we crossed the border into Italy three hours from now we could run out and buy a picnic basket.

We thereupon resolved to take leave of the Geneva-Rome express, only to learn from the steward that the very next stop, 45 minutes down the line, would leave us stranded in a remote and taxi-less part of Switzerland. So we decided instead to laugh about it, but to pass along these lapidary lines for the benefit of future romantics who think, when headed from Switzerland to the Eternal City, to disdain jet travel.

That day in the life of William Buckleyvitch seems remote, 24 hours later. In the morning there was high mass at St. Peter's, a brilliant organist, absorbed in the beauty of his music and the purpose it served, transmuting the noisy tourists into soft-shoed pilgrims. And then, sipping coffee and reading the Sunday Times on the Square, we await the Pope, who will appear sharp at noon at his window in the Vatican apartment to deliver the weekly homily.

Five minutes before noon, the shutters opened and the Papal banner, 20 feet long, is lowered. The wind, gusty and irreverent, hurls it back up, and over, and twists it here and there, and one wonders that after 2,000 years the Vatican has not learned how to deal with unruly winds—and then a fantasy: might it happen—just possibly!—that when the Pope appeared, suddenly the wind would quiet down, as the seas at Galilee once did?

Quite the contrary. The Vicar of Christ appeared, to address the crowd of 50,000, his voice somewhat tired and uncertain, like the Church whose voice he is, and the banner revolved right into his face, smothering the microphone. I do not know what he said, not knowing Italian, but I must suppose that he acknowledged the sacrifices that some of those, pressed into the square, had made in coming there; and I recalled that Hilaire Belloc walked all the way to Rome from Paris during my lifetime, and that not as many lifetimes ago, a journey to Rome consumed a major part of the lifetime of many pilgrims; and now, the journey, in modern times, takes longer and longer, as the impediments multiply, and the flesh weakens.

Spinning the wheel of yak

Russell Baker

Dave, Dave said he had heard that Mark had just had a great telephone chat with Theodore. Dave congratulated Mark and said he was proud to know him and hoped Mark would feel free to phone him (Dave) some time "when the old dialing finger feels an itch to spin the wheel of yak."

Mark then phoned Theodore to tell him of Dave's congratulatory call. He could not give Theodore a full account of that moment, he said, as he had to phone "a cat named Hector."

Before he could dial Hector, however, Mark received a telephone call from Ualume. She asked how Mark was feeling, how deeply she admired Dustin Hoffman and what he thought about Yoga. Mark said he would like to have a long chat with Ualume because he had heard that she was having a most immortal year. First, however, he had to call Hector. Would Ualume call him back shortly?

Dialing the number which Jimmy had given him, Mark asked the boy who answered if he was Hector. The boy said he was Hector, all right. Mark said his friend, Jimmy, had given him this number and told him there was a cat there named Hector who wasn't hearing enough bells. Hector said it was good of Mark to make the old phone ring. Mark said he would telephone later. In the meantime, he suggested, Hector might like to phone Ualume and ask how she was feeling.

MARK had scarcely rung off when his phone rang. It was Cora. She had had a call from Dave, who had asked her to call Mark because Mark was having a most immortal year and needed lots of belling. Cora said:

Mark told Cora that Dave had given her the wrong information and that it was Ualume who needed bell sounds. Cora apologized, but said that as long as she had Mark on the phone she simply had to tell him about the terrific phone conversation Pedro and Gloria Carker had conducted 45 minutes ago. It was about the feasibility of Pedro's getting the use of the family car to go downtown and see some great new telephone equipment which was being installed, Cora said.

Mark immediately phoned Pedro to congratulate him upon his phone conversation with Gloria Carker. Pedro said it was nothing really, compared to the terrific phone conversation which Mark had had with Theodore. Mark excused himself on ground that he had to phone Hector, and rang off.

Before Mark could activate the machinery to talk to Hector, however, Theodore phoned him. Theodore said he was extremely pleased about the terrific chat which he and Mark had had earlier. "Me, too," said Mark. "Let's do it again some time."

Next, Mark was telephoned by Hector, who said that he was feeling fine and that it was a nice day at his telephone location. Mark suggested that Hector telephone Cora and find out how the weather was at her house.

Then, almost immediately, Mark was phoned by Jimmy. Jimmy said his watch had stopped. He wondered if Mark knew anybody he could telephone who could give him a reliable reading on the exact time.

Mark's answer is not recorded, because of the cessation of service caused at Mark's house when the recording agent tore the telephone from the wall and hurled it through a picture window.

53% support Nader objectives

By LOUIS HARRIS

Ralph Nader, who has extended his campaign for auto safety to the broad range of consumer protection, seems to fit the public mood for a new pattern of political action. A lopsided majority of the American people (53 to 9 percent) feel that "the attacks of Ralph Nader on industry have done more good than harm," although a substantial 38 percent are not yet familiar enough with the consumer advocate to pass a judgment.

Recently, the Harris Survey asked a cross section of 1620 families a series of questions about Nader and his activities. Here are some of the highlights from that survey:

—By 693 percent, most persons feel "it's good to have critics such as Nader to keep industry on its toes."

—By 644 percent, nearly two out of three agree that Nader's efforts can go a long way toward improving the quality and standards of the products and services the American people receive.

—By 52-15 percent, most also agree that "there never would have been strict federal safety regulations for cars, if Nader had not crusaded for auto safety."

By 59-5 percent, the public rejects the charge that "Nader is a trouble-maker who is against the free enterprise system."

—By 57-6 percent, a majority also turn down the claim that "Nader's efforts are just part of the way-out and unfair protests of young people against the establishment."

In fact, the only criticism of Nader's efforts which met with much credence from this public was the charge that "Nader gives a one-sided picture of what American industry does, leaving out many good things industry does." Some 29 percent of the public agreed with that statement, although a slightly higher 30 percent disagreed, and 41 percent were simply "not sure."

Basically, the efforts of Nader, who has undertaken a series of campaigns against industry in the consumerism and environmental areas, have been extremely well received by the American public. He first rose to prominence on the issue of auto safety, but has since broadened his attacks to cover a wide range of alleged abuses by industry in bringing defective products to the public, in making false advertising claims, and in polluting the environment.

The pattern of Nader support tends to run strongest on the East and West coasts, among better-educated and higher-income persons who live in the suburbs, and among independent-minded voters. His activities are least well known in the South and most criticized in the Midwest. The cross section was asked:

"Do you feel that in his attacks on American industry, consumer advocate Ralph Nader has done more good than harm or more harm than good?"

tries. A majority of business executives interviewed in the survey said nonetheless they believe the consumer advocate has done "more good than harm."

The big reasons volunteered by the public for backing Nader's work are that "he has educated the public and made people more aware of the quality of products and services they buy," that "he has exposed the weaknesses of many products offered on the market," "is responsible for safer cars," and "he has made manufacturers more aware of the need for proper quality control."

To test the public's reaction pro and con to Nader, the following series was asked of the cross section:

To the editor

Editorial policy draws criticism

The Daily News is publishing misguided, pseudo-patriotic garbage. A few examples have been the bereavement with the loss of three autocratic, militaristic-minded bigots, namely Rep. L. Mendel Rivers, Sen. Richard B. Russell and Sen. Everett M. Dirksen. (Let us pray to their eternal filibuster wherever it may be), the continued naive complacency of the Defense Department's incursions into Indo-China, the comment concerning America's great free-enterprise capitalists (i.e. Carnegie, Ford, Rockefeller etc.) who if left uncumbered would rather have set up a system of monopolistic control with themselves as heads, and last but not least the soul rendering, tear jerking comment about the servicemen of World War II and all the love and kisses they left behind in the European theater of war. Sometimes it sounds as if the editorial staff is still fighting WWII and if they can survive their own nostalgia, by God they might win it.

May I suggest that you reopen the dust laden covers of the history books and re-examine your personal experiences in WWII and attempt to come up with something a little more believable and true to life. It pains me to see such an august and respectable newspaper as the Winona Daily News thrown into the homespun, cracker-barrel variety.

Our free enterprise system and national security have been threatened by men such as Dirksen, Russell, Rivers, Carnegie, Rockefeller, etc., but have withstood the destructive forces of all. If the Daily News editorial staff stops patting them on their decrepit behinds long enough to create factual, common sense remarks, then the faithful readers of the Daily News may enjoy something other than the bull in a candy sack that they are now getting.

Trucks don't disturb all teachers in city

I was to the meeting of the Planning Commission March 25 on the issue of closing Gould and Villa streets from Wabasha to Howard streets. As a concerned taxpayer I was very disgusted with the outcome.

The commission spoke so they were barely heard or didn't they want to be heard?

One of the teachers spoke of the noise of a truck disturbing his class. Dedicated students bent on an education wouldn't be bothered by this. What about the trucks that are always delivering to Saint Teresa? If the noise of trucks is so disturbing, why aren't the other teachers in Winona complaining?

There is ample space for campus, east of the library and by Assisi Hall. What is wrong with using those spaces and leaving city streets alone?

Incidentally, how many of the students at Saint Teresa are from Winona?

Saint Teresa is tax free. How much more do they want? Taxpayers helped pay for the streets. Why should the city be allowed to give them away, for something Saint Teresa wants? Can the city give taxpayers' property to a private concern?

If the council approves of this, I feel that their only concern is with the school and they aren't having any consideration for the private citizens.

Light show chairmen express their thanks

When asked if we'd be co-chairmen of the Winona County Historical Society's 1971 Light-O-Rama show March 17-21, we said yes, if we'd have help, and that we did. Everyone helped tremendously. The public displayed many beautiful lamps and lights, old and new. The committees all worked together. The candle molding by Pat Ryan and candle dipping by Mrs. Ed Lettermann was enjoyed by all.

Electric co-op annual meeting Saturday

RUSHFORD, Minn. (Special) — Tri-County Electric Cooperative will hold its annual membership meeting at the Rushford High School auditorium Saturday.

Registration of members will begin at 9:30 a.m. There will be free movies at the Trojan Theatre at 10, and the noon meal serving will begin at 11 according to Arnold Onstad, president.

Two directors will be elected, one from Fillmore and one from Winona County. Nominees from Fillmore County are Oliver Johnson, Harmony, and Elton Redalen, Incumbent, Fountain. George Mathis, Winona, incumbent director, will have opposition from nominations made from the floor.

Dr. Edward C. Frederick, provost of the University of Minnesota Technical College, Waseca, will be guest speaker. Reports on the cooperative's operations will be presented by Onstad, John F. Papenfuss, secretary-treasurer, and Earl L. Johnson, general manager. John Kalmes, Rollingstone, delegate to the Washington Youth Tour will report and Minnesota Association of Cooperatives Youth Conference reports will be given by Gary Harmon, Utica, George D. A. v. y, Brownsville, and Teresa Nelson, Canton.

The cooperative supplies electric power to 8,636 consumers over 2,798 miles of line in southeastern Minnesota.

Houston Co. GOP names new officers

CALEDONIA, Minn. (Special) — Ed Tetrault, Caledonia, was elected chairman of the Houston County Republican party at the 1971 convention in the Houston County courthouse last week.

Other officers: Luther Rodvik, La Crescent, vice chairman; Rita Brown, La Crescent, vice chairwoman; Bruce Forde, Caledonia, secretary, and Dale Droivold, Spring Grove, treasurer. The county chairwoman will be selected by the county committee.

Keynote speakers were Rep. Leonard Myrah and Sen. Lew Larson.

Resolutions were passed favoring overhaul and revision of present welfare programs, alleviation of pollution, replacement for the property tax and mandatory arbitration before a strike.

On behalf of county Republicans, outgoing vice-chairman John Rippe presented Mrs. William Murphy with a plaque in appreciation of her long service to the party.

Committee reports were given by Elmer Bunge, William Von Arx, Luther Rodvik, Junior Wiebe, Mrs. Gordon Pitel and Ronald Thompson.

Osseo youth injured in Jackson Co. crash

OSSEO, Wis. — Michael Ida, 17, Osseo Rt. 1, was treated and released from the Osseo Area Hospital early Saturday morning after the car he was driving struck a parked car. A passenger, Rodney Kittleson, 17, Osseo, was not injured.

Ida was proceeding south on County Trunk G near York in his 1964 model car when he struck a 1965 model vehicle which was parked on the south side of the road. Damage to the Ida vehicle was estimated at $400 and to the parked car, $300. The accident was investigated by the Jackson County sheriff's office.

Little revision seen in two-year draft plan

WASHINGTON (AP) — A two-year draft extension clearing the way for President Nixon's "zero draft" volunteer Army heads for a House vote this week with little revision likely.

Draft opponents plan floor efforts to free draftees from serving in Indochina, give Congress a chance to cut off the draft next year if the war has not wound down, and a host of other revisions.

But the only ones they say privately might win are amendments to restore draft deferments for divinity students and preserve existing deferments for other students.

One reason for their pessimism is the near tripling by the House Armed Service Committee of the President's pay boost incentives for attracting volunteers—from $987 million to $2.7 billion. This has blunted House opposition to the draft.

The committee's bill also would authorize the President to abolish student deferments as of last April 23 and increase nonmilitary conscientious objector service from two to three years.

The House vote is planned Wednesday or Thursday. If passed, as expected, the bill goes to the Senate where its fate is uncertain.

The draft opponent's strategy is to try first to abolish the entire Selective Service System. This failing, they will propose

Rogers: powers being pushed near agreement

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of State William P. Rogers says Soviet military activity remains of great concern to the United States but that world circumstances are pushing the superpowers toward a nuclear arms limitation agreement.

In a 617-page report on U.S. foreign affairs during the first two years of the Nixon administration, Rogers outlined a dual concept of U.S.-Soviet relations.

"Because of the size and power of each nation," the secretary said, "because of their varying interests and because of the Soviet Union's ideology we can expect continued challenge from the U.S.S.R. in the years ahead."

"We may also anticipate cooperation and accommodation in instances clearly within the scope of our mutual interests."

The report was made public Saturday night, three days before the opening in Moscow of the first Soviet communist Party Congress since 1966.

Diplomats expect that meeting may produce a parallel assessment of U.S.-Soviet relations from the Kremlin's point of view in a report normally made by Soviet communist leader Leonid Brezhnev.

Rogers, repeatedly using the word "concern," emphasized worry in the highest quarters in Washington over Soviet actions in the Mideast.

"The Soviet Union has declared that its policy favors a permanent peace in which each state of the area would be secure," Rogers said in the

Brezhnev rises to power spot

By STEPHENS BROENING

MOSCOW (AP) — The Kremlin's collective leadership is slowly becoming less collective as Leonid Brezhnev rises to a position of preeminence.

This is the conclusion of diplomats from both the communist East and the capitalist West on the eve of the 24th congress of the Soviet communist party.

As general secretary of the party, Brezhnev is well-placed to augment his power and stature. There are persistent signs he is trying to do just that.

Tapped by Joseph Stalin to sit as a candidate member on the enlarged Central Committee Presidium in 1952, Brezhnev was considered part of what was known as "the Stalinist reserve."

He was dropped from the Presidium after the dictator's death, but with the help of Nikita Khrushchev, party first secretary, Brezhnev was returned to the Presidium as a nonvoting member at the "de-Stalinization" congress of 1956. He was raised to full membership the following year.

In 1964 he helped engineer the ouster of his former patron, Khrushchev, and emerged from the upheaval as first secretary, but pledged to the party notion of collective leadership.

For most of the past five years he has conformed with official practice, sharing duties and appearances with Premier Alexei N. Kosygin and President Nikolai V. Podgorny.

With the approach of the congress, the party's ruling body, Brezhnev has made several attempts to distinguish himself from his colleagues.

The first sign was his New Year's address to the nation. Last month he alone signed the draft directives for the party congress.

These moves, diplomats reason, were made to impress the public and the members of the party with Brezhnev's status.

Your horoscope — Jeane Dixon

FOR TUESDAY, MARCH 30

YOUR BIRTHDAY TODAY: Your trend now is toward over-expansion and extravagance, while you encounter increasing responsibility and opportunity for more authority. Find a balance and stick to it. Today's natives, by expressing themselves, can win fulfillment of strong ambitions through their friends' cooperation.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Round up funds, collect whatever is owed you, put as much as you can into reserves or savings.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Temptation is toward hasty action. Find a middle course and stay with it. Your knowledge of others is subtly tested.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Life has an added social-whirl quality now; meet everybody half-way in all good faith.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Act promptly to consolidate your advantages. Convert whatever you can into useful form while circumstances permit.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Make this a feast day, at least in spirit, leaving compensatory economy to a later date. Idealistic projects turn out to be costly in time, energy, resources.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Firm outlines of reality come to the surface, perhaps as legal issues. Your field of action narrows to sharp yes-or-no choices.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Exploit the general drift of advantage in your direction. Set something aside for later, more expansive uses.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Logical conclusions are essential—see that your thinking covers all the angles and comes up with consistent results.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Today you can bargain, so follow up all negotiations diligently but with tact. You can achieve marked improvements for yourself and those you care about.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Your natural tendency now is to reach for too much, too far, and too soon. It's all there for you to see, but you have to achieve through normal means.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Get out from under the turmoil today, take whatever break or diversion is available. Relax, get your mind off serious business.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Open new directions of personal interest and involvement, no matter where you are or how limited your opportunity for expression.

Miss Harriet Kelley installed as worthy matron of OES 141

Miss Harriet Kelley was installed worthy matron of Winona Chapter 141, Order of Eastern Star, at an open installation Saturday evening at the Masonic Temple.

Other officers installed were Ervin Laufenburger, worthy patron; Miss Lorraine Wachs, associate matron; George Elliott, associate patron; Mrs. Merrill Holland, secretary; Mrs. Arthur Jackman, treasurer; Mrs. Gordon Ballard, conductress; Mrs. William Ferguson, associate conductress; Mrs. Ervin Laufenburger, chaplain; Mrs. Ralph Legreid, marshal; Mrs. Robert Tremain, organist;

Miss Margaret Ferguson, Adah; Mrs. Esther Miller, Ruth; Mrs. George Elliott, Esther; Mrs. Kenneth Junghans, Martha; Mrs. Barbara Ozmun, Electa; Merrill Peterson, warder, and William Ferguson, sentinel.

Installing officer was Ralph Bowers, past patron. He was assisted by Mrs. Herbert Schladsinke, installing marshal; Mrs. Harry S. Johnson, installing chaplain; Miss June Sorlein, installing organist; Mrs. Hale Stow, guest conductress, and Mrs. Iris Carlson, guest associate conductress.

All are past matrons. In addition, Mrs. Schladsinke is the present grand marshal of the grand chapter of the state of Minnesota.

The Bible and Emblem Ceremony was presented by past matrons Fae Griffith, Ruth Wheeler, Pearl Engstrom, Rose Johnston, Helen Morcomb, Freda Pietsch, Doree Gilham and Elsie Sartell. The American flag was presented by Lester Peterson and the OES flag by Mrs. Carl Frank.

The Rev. John Kerr gave the invocation and solos were sung by Merrill Peterson, Mrs. Adalyn Rektstad and the Rev. Glenn Quam.

The newly installed worthy matron and patron gave their acceptance speeches after which jewels were presented to each of them. Miss Kelley will honor the stations of Chaplain and Ruth. The motto will be "Faith and Friendship"; the symbol, the Open Holy Bible; the flower, the yellow rose and the colors will be pink, green and gold. The theme will be "Trust in the Lord."

Dear Abby:

Divorcee: I'm marrying ex-priest

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: I am a 37-year-old divorcee and mother of three. I am deeply in love with a 50-year-old man who is kind, gentle and considerate and wants to marry me. He is genuinely fond of my children and they of him.

Now, the problem: He's a Roman Catholic priest who is leaving the priesthood soon. He assures me that the decision to leave was made before we became emotionally involved, and I believe him.

I know that many men leave the priesthood every year, but I do not know anyone whose advice I could seek concerning the problems I may face in marrying an ex-priest. I wonder about the censure of family and friends, and his possible resentment eventually of having given up a 22-year vocation for a ready-made family.

Perhaps you, or some of your readers, could offer some advice. If I seem overly cautious, it's because I have one marital failure behind me and I want to do everything possible to insure a successful marriage the second time around. ANXIOUS

Abby

DEAR ANXIOUS: You can expect the same problems encountered by any other 37-year-old woman with a ready-made family who marries a 50-year-old bachelor. Plus others. Even tho he may not have left the priesthood to marry you (and a divorced woman, yet!) many will say he did.

Much will depend on where you live. Ex-priests who marry find it easier to make a new life in a new community. Wherever you go, you can expect subtle snubs and cutting remarks. You will lose some old friends because your husband "deserted his calling" and broke his vows. And you will win some new friends for the courage and honesty you have shown: Your former good friends will remain good friends.

Priests are usually sensitive, highly motivated and accustomed to discipline, and will work to make a marriage succeed, but I advise you to proceed with caution, and give him time to adjust to his new life before you say, "I do." I wish you luck.

DEAR ABBY: What does "B. Y. O. B." mean at the bottom of an invitation? PUDGE

DEAR PUDGE: If it's a drinkin' party, it means Bring Your Own Bottle. If it's a prayin' party, it means Bring Your Own Bible.

DEAR ABBY: "NO DUNKER" griped about the barbaric, uncivilized new social custom of serving chip dips and fondue. She said it was unsanitary and unhealthy for everyone to dip into and eat out of one large communal pot!

We "The Barbaric Naval Advisors of Viet Nam," would appreciate it if NO DUNKER would gather up all the half-eaten chips and leftover dips and fondue and send it over here. We eat out of a communal pot 365 days a year and nobody has caught anything from the pot yet.

Attends institute for administrators

Sister M. Amadeus Klein, R.M., M.S.N., administrator of St. Anne Hospice, attended the Minnesota Institute for Nursing Home Administrators at Minneapolis Thursday and Friday. The program was focused on a formula for executive self-analysis, principles of nursing home administration, licensure of Minnesota nursing home administrators, and a study of Ameriplan, the American Hospital Association's proposal for the delivery and financing of health services in the United States.

Blatchford: Action Corps no alternative to service

By TOM SEPPY
WASHINGTON (AP) — Joseph Blatchford says the new Action Corps will not become an alternative to military service as long as the United States is actively involved in a shooting war in Southeast Asia. The Peace Corps director, named by President Nixon to head the new volunteer service agency, also said Congress should include the Teacher Corps in the merger. Critics have argued against the Teacher Corps being moved, but Blatchford said it will provide more opportunities for volunteer service. Nixon gave some details of plans to merge the Peace Corps, Volunteers in Service to America—VISTA—and other federal volunteer programs into one program in a message to Congress last week. He asked $176 million the first year. Some observers said the merged agency was the first step to providing young people with an alternative to service in the military. "I don't know how that will phase in eventually," said Blatchford in an interview on the Action Corps. "It depends a good deal on the winding down of the war in Vietnam, the elimination of the draft—two things the President is committed to doing." "And, then I would hope the ranks of the Action Corps would swell with applications of volunteers who want to serve at home or abroad, or both, because they don't face the draft, because they don't have to go in the Army." "Right now, during a shooting war, I don't think there are any actual proposals to make this alternate service," he said. Other critics of the Action Corps, which would combine 8,000 Peace Corpsmen, 4,000 VISTAs and 3,000 teacher interns, was being formed to blunt the activities of domestic poverty workers. Blatchford denied this. On merging the Teacher Corps into the new agency, a move opposed by many educators, Blatchford said: "This is really the President's decision." "The President was very outspoken with me about this, giving me his arguments as to why the Teacher Corps should be in the agency," he said. "He's hoping that Congress will put it in. What's the basic theme? To enlarge the opportunities for service in fighting against our common problems. The Teacher Corps is right in that category."

Davidson-Bunke vows exchanged at Rushford

RUSHFORD, Minn. (Special) — Rushford Lutheran Church was the setting for the March 13 wedding of Miss Ingrid Marie Davidson and Duane Lyle Bunke. The Rev. Owen Gaasdel officiated. Organist Miss Sandy Myro accompanied the Luther League Singers.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Davidson, and Mr. and Mrs. Wilton Bunke, all of Rushford. The bride wore an empire gown of white crepe with bishop sleeves and train of chiffon. Lace trim accented the gown and train. A petal crown held her shoulder-length veil and she carried a cross of red roses. Miss Fay Jacobson, Rushford, was maid of honor with Miss Cindy Bunke, sister of the bridegroom, and Miss Heidi Davidson as bridesmaids. They wore gowns of purple, pink and blue, respectively, and carried bouquets of matching mums. Their short net tulle veils were held by a bow. Donald Bunke, brother of the bridegroom, was best man and Gerald Elide and Llewellyn Peterson were groomsmen. Clark Davidson was ring bearer. Ronald Stensgaard and Nathan Davidson ushered. A reception was held in the church parlors following the ceremony. The couple will make their home in Rushford. The bridegroom is engaged in farming with his father.

Eight killed; state traffic toll hits 144

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Weekend accidents took eight lives and raised Minnesota's 1971 traffic toll to 144, compared with 164 a year ago.

Kenneth Koelsch, 63, and his wife Hazel were killed Sunday after their car left Minn. 55 near its intersection with Minn. 49 in Dakota County and struck a tree. Authorities said the accident occurred about 2 p.m. three miles south of the Mendota bridge.

Two persons died Saturday Minn. 55 north of the Mendota bridge, near Fort Snelling. Edward Kaufhold Jr., 59, West St. Paul, and Bruce Marshall, 16, Richfield, were killed when the cars were driving collided head-on Saturday morning, the Highway Patrol said.

Four of Kaufhold's children who were passengers in his station wagon were hospitalized with injuries. Marshall was alone in his car.

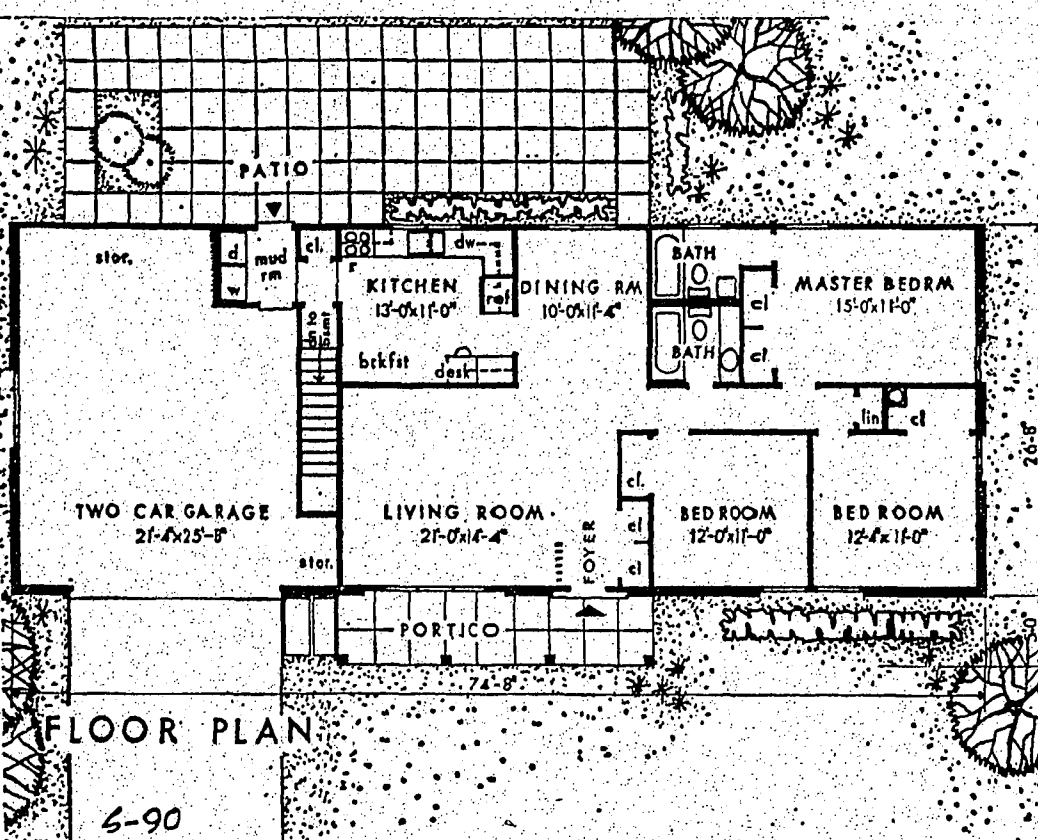

Three accidents in western Minnesota Saturday and early Sunday took four lives.

Nancy Olson, 28, of Spring Lake Park, and her daughter Kristi, 9, were killed in a rear-end collision on Int. 90 about five miles west of Worthington late Saturday.

The Highway Patrol said the husband and father of the victims, Lawrence Olson, 29, suffered minor injuries. He was driving the car which struck the rear of a truck driven by Eugene Burns, 36, Pipestone, Minn., who was not hurt.

An accident early Sunday on Minn. 273 one-half mile south of Belview took the life of G. Busak, 39, Echo, Minn. The Highway Patrol said he was alone in a car which collided with a vehicle driven by Ronald Johnson, 19, Belview.

Orlan E. Olson, 24, rural Hendricks, Minn., was killed Saturday when his car left a Yellow Medicine county road about 12 miles southeast of Canby, the sheriff's office said.

FLOOR PLAN: This is a practical floor arrangement within a rectangular design. There is easy traffic movement from the front foyer. Rear entrance and door from garage facilitate the movement of groceries to the kitchen and outside equipment to the basement.

Design S-90 is a ranch with a living room, dining room, kitchen, three bedrooms, two bathrooms and a foyer, totaling 1,370 square feet of habitable area. There is a laundry-mud room and closet just off the kitchen, plus an over-sized garage with two storage sections and a full basement. Over-all dimensions, which include the garage, are 74 feet 8 inches by 23 feet 8 inches.

Top Arab leaders gathering in Paris

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
With President Anwar Sadat warning that the next few days will be "decisive in our battle for destiny," Egyptian Foreign Minister Mahmoud Riad and a score of his top diplomats gathered in Paris today for a meeting their government hopes will generate new pressure on Israel.

En route to the meeting, Riad stopped off in Italy for talks with President Tito of Yugoslavia.

lavia, Italian Premier Emilio Colombo and Foreign Minister Aldo Moro. Today Riad was meeting with French Foreign Minister Maurice Schumann.

Riad begins a three-day session on Tuesday with 21 of his diplomats stationed in Europe and America, including U.N. Ambassador Mohammed Hassan el-Zayyat and Ashraf Ghorbal, Egypt's representative in Washington.

Egyptian sources said conference would map a vigorous campaign to demonstrate to the West that the current no-peace, no-war situation is extremely dangerous and that Egypt already is on a genuine war footing.

Speaking to newsmen on his arrival from Rome, Riad praised the French government for its "just appreciation of the situation in the Middle East."

President Sadat told a rally in Khartoum Sunday that Egypt had done all it could to achieve peace in the Middle East. The official Middle East News Agency's report of his speech did not elaborate on his remark that the next few days would be decisive for the Arabs, but he was warned before that the unofficial truce along the Suez Canal cannot last unless there is progress in the peace talks.

Linking the Israeli stand with U.S. support for Israel, Sadat said: "It is amazing for us to see that the United States which supplies Israel with Phantom jets, is exposed to tremendous pressure from Israel whereas it should be the other way around."

The Egyptian leader said the two cardinal points of his country's position are recovery of "every inch" of Arab land and the restoration of the rights of the Palestinian people.

Sadat also took note of the fighting in northern Jordan Friday in which at least 10 persons were killed. The Egyptian president warned there would be grave "Arab punishment against those" who try to eliminate the guerrillas.

Libyan strongman Muammar

Kadafi, addressing a crowd in Tripoli, called upon the guerrillas to overthrow Jordan's government and said: "If we were on the Jordanian frontier, we would have participated in a war against King Hussein."

New fighting broke out Sunday in Jordan's capital, when students marched to protest the fighting between the army and the guerrillas. Army patrols tried to stop the demonstration and firing broke out. The guerrilla command claimed a young girl and several women were wounded.

Dog's life just not appealing to St. Paul people

ST. PAUL (AP) — Is it a dog's life for the man who goes after 'em too?

Perhaps so. No one working for the city of St. Paul has applied for the job of dogcatcher. The city's Civil Service Bureau can't hire one of the hundreds of others who've applied because one of the requirements is that the job be "for promotion only."

That clause was included in the job specifications because up to 50 garbage workers may be laid off when the city goes out of the business June 30. Some have told Civil Service they may be interested, but none has applied for the job, which pays from $3.52 to $4.40 an hour, depending on experience.

As garbagemen, they've been getting $4.85 and will receive $5.44 an hour May 1.

Two permits drawn for city building

Only two building permits were drawn last week in Winona for a total cost of $6,500, according to permits on file in the office of George Rogge, city building inspector.

Cenex, Inc., Prairie Island Road, drew a $5,000 permit for repair to an industrial railroad carport. Contractor for the work will be Winona Construction Co., 111 Market St.

The other permit was drawn for $1,500 for interior remodeling to the William Hanlon home, 1171 W. 5th St. Ralph Scharmer, 571 W. Mill St., is the contractor.

GAS-FIRED HEATING INSTALLATION

By Superior Heating and Roofing, 75 E. 2nd St. — Casimir Kowalewski, 1063 E. Broadway. Total valuation for permits drawn so far this year is $204,755, compared with $373,620 at this time in 1970. Two permits for new houses have been drawn in 1971 compared with three in 1970.

Area building permits listed

A total of 10 building permits were issued in Winona during February, carrying a total valuation of $56,000, according to data released by the Federal Reserve Bank of Minneapolis. This compares with February, 1970, totals of 17 permits carrying a total valuation of $41,000.

Of the February, 1971 total, all 10 were non-residential permits. Cumulative valuation for the year is $78,000.

The cumulative number of permits drawn for the state of Minnesota is 2,575, with a total valuation of $77,799,000. The February valuation decreased from $41,169,000 in 1970 to $25,141,000 in 1971.

Following are February statistics for area and comparably-sized cities ($000 omitted):

Here's the Answer

Q—I plan on finishing an attic with gypsum wallboard, the kind with the plain edges. I understand there is a particular way to fill the joints between the sheets of wallboard so that there is a single continuous surface. Can you tell me how this is done?

A—First, it is better to apply the long dimensions of the gypsum boards at right angles to the studs, since this usually reduces the amount of joints to be concealed. Nails should be spaced up to seven inches apart and never less than ¾ of an inch from the edges or ends of the boards.

Use a crown-faced hammer so that the last blow against the nailhead produces a slight dimple in the board. As each nail is driven in, the area of the board immediately surrounding the nail should be held tightly against the framing.

In filling the joints, use a putty knife about five inches wide, along with a special perforated tape and adhesive purchased from the dealer who sells you the gypsum board. Using moderate pressure, spread the adhesive into the channel. Lay the tape into the adhesive, centering it over the joint. Cover the tape with a thin layer of adhesive. When that coat has dried, sand it lightly, then apply another thin coat. Repeat the sanding after the second coat.

Minneapolis police find hashish cache

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Police have arrested a 23-year-old Wisconsin woman following discovery of hashish valued at $20,000 in the backing of a piece of mosaic art work.

Mrs. Marjorie Maki, district director of the U.S. Customs Bureau, said the illegal drug shipment was hidden in the backing of a mosaic shipped from Israel earlier this month.

And now everyone knows where Melrose is

Not so much a lack of faith as apprehension

By PAT THOMPSON
MELROSE, Minn. (AP) — Their sermons prepared, the Revs. Ralph Keller and Raymond Lang still worked past midnight to complete their preparations for Sunday Masses at St. Mary's Catholic Church.

The reason?
The Melrose Dutchmen had just won the Class AA championship of the 59th Minnesota High School Basketball tournament in Minneapolis.

"I don't think I should say we pray for Melrose," confessed Father Keller, "because the other team might think God was on the other side. So just say we cheered for Melrose."

The object of their late-night work was a poster which they attached to the pulpit: "Congratulations Dutchmen, Class A 1971 Champions."

"We should have had more faith and made the banner before the game," the father said. After watching the championship on television, Father Lang came up with the idea to open their sermons.

"When we first came here," Father Keller said in his sermon, "people we knew would ask where Melrose was. We jokingly said it's 10 miles from St. Rosa. We no longer have to do that."

As the cliché goes, the Dutchmen put Melrose — population 2,200 — on the map with a 64-53 victory over Red Wing in the Class A final.

The townsfolk, most of whom are ethnic Germans, swayed passersby with their enthusiasm while awaiting the arrival of their heroes.

One out-of-towner stood dejectedly in front of a vending machine which he could not operate because he lacked the proper change.

"Here's 15 cents," said a man. "Our high school just won the state championship."

The entire Stearns County farming community and neighboring towns in central Minnesota rose up with a giant welcome Sunday afternoon.

John Provinzino, school superintendent, estimated more than 3,000 persons jammed their way into the high school gymnasium after the 200-car caravan had arrived.

The caravan, formed in nearby Freeport, was escorted by two fire engines, into the town, suddenly stopping for several minutes while a Burlington Northern freight roared past.

The brief delay didn't dampen the spirit of the homecoming as the team received ovation after ovation. "This town knows how to celebrate," said Father Keller. "This town is beautiful to celebrate with."

In contrast, Class AA champion Duluth Central was met on the outskirts of the port city by a single squad car and escorted to an assembly attended by about 1,000. A bigger celebration is planned in Duluth next week.

Melrose and Duluth will play at 7:30 p.m. Saturday in Williams Arena for the overall state championship.

"Melrose doesn't have a thing to lose," said Father Keller. "Poor Duluth has nothing to gain and everything to lose."

Central, Melrose go back to work...big one's Saturday

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — So now it's Class AA Duluth Central, 23-1, against Class A Melrose, 24-1, for the Minnesota High School Basketball championship.

Melrose, behind John Thelen's 23 points and 15 rebounds, defeated Red Wing 64-53 Saturday night and Central staged off-bury north St. Paul 54-51 in the afternoon for division championships.

"Central?" said Melrose Coach Dave Linehan after the Dutchmen won their title. "tough. It's a good thing we have a week to prepare for them."

First, Linehan rewarded his team two days off from practice. "This has been a hard week," he said. "All three of our games

Looks forward to Madison

Costello: winning on the road is big plus

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — Milwaukee Coach Larry Costello said the National Basketball Association playoffs could be fun if it weren't for the San Francisco Warriors.

"We're looking forward to Madison and all those screaming fans," Costello said Sunday as the Bucks prepared for the second game of their best-of-seven series against San Francisco.

The series opened Saturday in Oakland, Calif., with the Bucks defeating San Francisco 107-96. Because their home court in Milwaukee is tied up by a civic exposition, the Bucks will host tonight's game at the University of Wisconsin fieldhouse in Madison.

"It's a big plus winning on the road," Costello said of the victory in Oakland, "especially the opener."

"But it is no time to let up," he said. "You can't take 'Frisco lightly." Our defense put on a lot of pressure and made them take the shots we wanted them to take. They were tough shots. Unfortunately they were dropping in," the coach said.

A Milwaukee lead was cut to 52-46 when San Francisco outscored the Bucks 32-2, and Milwaukee made it into intermission with a 58-52 lead.

Oscar Robertson, who finished the game with 31 points, paced Milwaukee to a 65-56 advantage early in the third quarter. But with Jeff Mullins and Fritz Williams providing similar incentive, the Warriors climbed to within two points of Milwaukee until the Bucks outscored San Francisco 24-20 in the final period.

"With a lead like we had," Costello said, "there is a tendency to relax. You can't afford to do that because it is hard to get going again."

San Francisco, he said, "used every combination possible—Clyde Lee up front, Al Attles at guard. They were exploratory. I don't know what else they'll try."

Lew Alcindor, Milwaukee's 7-foot-2 chief engineer for success, rode the bench for about 10 minutes of the game, but finished with 25 points and 10 rebounds.

"Lew did all right for 38 minutes of play," Costello said. Milwaukee had a 49-47 rebound advantage. San Francisco's rebound ability had been one of Costello's concerns about the Warriors.

The two clubs meet again Tuesday night at the UW fieldhouse, then return to Oakland Thursday.

were tough. The squad has worked hard all year for this. They have given a great account. And make sure you put down that assistant coaches Frank Sheldon and Del Schiffler did great jobs and had a lot to do with our success."

Coach Jim Hastings of Central planned a skull session today before sending the Trojans back to work.

The first Championship Play-off at 7:30 p.m. next Saturday in Williams Arena will match the play of 6-foot-8½ Como Pontilana and a proud defense against Melrose's tough defense.

Reserves Bill Levine and Steve Potter saved Central's victory to which Pontilana contributed. 18 points. Levine's jump shot with 1:52 to play broke a 48-48 tie and Potter later added two free throws to preserve the lead.

The Trojans, leading most of the first half, fell behind 48-44 before Pontilana hit a basket and Larry Potter, Steve's older brother, sank two free throws to set up Levine's jumper from the side.

Hastings had loudly scolded his team after a semifinal victory over Brainerd Friday night, and Larry Potter said it did some good.

"He made us think a little harder about things," said Larry Potter. "We said we're going to work harder. My brother, and I'm sure proud of him, and Bill Levine brought us through. We'll be ready for next week."

Melrose, shooting 53.5 percent from the field, built up a 13-point lead in the first half. But Red Wing scrambled back to within one point, 38-35, before the Dutchmen took off again.

Kurt Knoff scored a tournament high of 39 points in leading East Grand Forks to an 80-77 victory over Renville, which came into the tournament undefeated, for Class A third place honors.

Minneapolis Central came from behind to edge Brainerd 54-53 for Class AA third place er play goal by Don Marshall, who deflected Allan Hamilton's shot from the point. Perreault started the play.

The Sabres made it 3-0 on second-period goals by Paul Goyette and Steve Atkinson.

"Once Buffalo gets a lead like that," said Bill Goldsworthy, "they play the old Toronto style of sitting on the puck. It's hard to get anything going against that type of checking."

Drouin's goal came at 17:00 of the second period, but the Sabres took a 4-1 lead before the period ended as Perreault fed a goalmouth pass to Eddie Shack, who converted it.

The North Stars' other goal came off the stick of Gordon Labossiere at 17:24 of the third period.

Minnesota's Bobby Rousseau was sent home before the game after he complained of chest pains Sunday afternoon.

Wooden takes a gamble to triumph again

HOUSTON (AP) — UCLA Coach John Wooden had more in mind than slowing down Villanova Saturday when he sent his NCAA champion Bruins into a stall game that produced a fifth consecutive national title.

"I was hoping they wouldn't come out and we would hold the ball all day," Wooden said of the sometimes unpopular freeze tactic that helped the Bruins to a 68-62 victory over Villanova.

While Wooden has long been an apostle of speedup methods in college basketball, he didn't hesitate to go to the slowdown when he needed it to win the Bruins seventh NCAA title in eight years.

UCLA has more often been the intended victim of slowdown play to stop their run and gun style, but Wooden wanted Villanova to come out of its zone defense and the stall was the answer, even if it almost backfired.

"I didn't think they could beat us man-to-man," Wooden said. "We went to the slowdown to bring them out of their zone defense and it worked. Yes, it did hurt our momentum but that's a gamble you have to take."

Losing coach Jack Kraft said UCLA's stall helped the runner-up Wildcats get back in the game in the second half when twice they cut a 12-point deficit to three points.

ABA division title is back home in Indiana

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Another division title has found itself back home again in Indiana.

The Indiana Pacers, who won the East Division last year before going into the American Basketball Association championship, claimed the West Sunday with a 146-126 victory over Denver.

The Pacers' victory, coupled with Utah's 133-120 loss to New York, clinched the title before 10,000 standing-room-only fans at home.

Elsewhere in the ABA Sunday, it was Virginia 141, Texas 131; Floridians 130, Pittsburgh 117 and Carolina 148, Kentucky 142.

In the ABA Saturday night, it was Pittsburgh 128, Utah 120; Virginia 137, Carolina 133; Floridians 118, New York 104 and Denver 120, Texas 118.

The Pacers swept to a 9-0 lead at the start and were never challenged by the Rockets. Bill Miller topped the winners with 24 points. Bob Netelicky had 23 and Freddie Lewis, 21.

Ralph Simpson of Denver was the game's high scorer with 30 points, 13 of them in the final quarter.

Virginia led all the way behind Charlie Scott's 30 points to close out its regular season at home. Jim Eakins pitched in 27 and George Carter, 25 for the Squires, the Eastern Division titlists.

Levern Tart scored 29 points and Gene Moore had 24 for the Chaps.

Mack Calvin scored 37 points and Larry Jones 26 to lead the Floridians, who are riding the crest of a seven-game winning streak. The victory assured the winners fourth place in the East.

John Brisker was high for Pittsburgh with 32 points.

Carolina beat Kentucky despite a 51-point output by rookie flash Dan Issel.

Carolina, powered by Larry Miller's 34 points and George Lehmann's 33, charged away to 35-point leads in the second period only to have Kentucky tie it at 81 in the third period. The Colonels went ahead 114-113 before Miller and Lehmann sparked a Carolina comeback.

Rick Barry poured in 51 points on his 27th birthday as New York completed its regular home season with the victory over Utah. George Stone topped the losers with 24.

Michigan '5' rips Blues in regional play

MADISON, Wis. — The Chatfield Blues, representing the state of Minnesota, went down to defeat at the hands of the eventual champions in the Region Four National Amateur Basketball Tournament held here over the weekend.

Chatfield was battered by a powerful Flint, Mich., team Saturday afternoon 142-112 in its first appearance in the single-elimination tourney. Flint's output of 142 broke the existing record for most points by a team in a single game, and the 254 total by both teams was 43 points higher than the previous record.

THE BLUES trailed only 61-53 at halftime and managed to close to within two points at 70-68 with just over 15 minutes left in the game. But paced by the torrid shooting of Justus Thigton, the Michigan champs pulled away rapidly in the last ten minutes.

Thigton, a 6-4 guard who played his college ball at Weber State College in Utah, poured in 51 points against Chatfield to break Chuck Nagle's old mark of 41.

Dick Irish, assistant basketball coach at Preston, collected 39 points to lead Chatfield's attack. Chip Schartz followed with 19, Mike Kites added 15, Jim Matzke bagged 14, and Tink Larson finished with ten. The Blues wound up the season with a 40-12 record overall.

FLINT WENT on to edge Indianapolis, Ind., 134-132 in the championship game thus setting a new game scoring record again. The Region Four winners will next participate in the National Amateur Tournament beginning Thursday in Reading, Pa.

Irish and Thigton were named to the all-tournament team Sunday along with Jim Gilliam of Flint, Craig Mayberry of Fort Atkinson, Wis., Henry Bell of Lexington, Ky., and Boyd Curin of Indianapolis. Thigton was also selected as the Most Valuable Player in the tourney.

And Boston needs him

Vacation is over for Orr

NEW YORK (AP) — The vacation is officially over for Boston's Bobby Orr.

The Bruins' superstar defenseman will be back fulltime for Wednesday night's game in Montreal and it may be some measure of this young man's importance to the National Hockey League's East Division champions to note that Boston lost four straight games when he became a part-timer.

The latest defeat was a 2-1 decision to the Rangers in New York Sunday night. Appearing only on power plays, Orr played just six minutes, 55 seconds and managed just two shots.

The Bruins, who'll be meeting Montreal in the first round of the Stanley Cup playoffs which begin one week from Wednesday, face the Canadiens twice in their final three games and obviously don't want to look watered down against them.

But watered down is what the Bruins are without Mr. Orr. The Rangers beat them twice over the weekend, playing wide open hockey in a 6-3 victory Saturday night and then playing a tight defensive game for Sunday's victory.

Glen Sather's third period goal was Sunday's winner—a goal that was hotly disputed by the Bruins, who claimed he had kicked it into the net.

The Rangers, on the other hand, have lost just three games in the last 17 and are playing their best hockey of the season right now. And that's just the way Coach Emile Francis wants it.

In Sunday's other games, Montreal edged Chicago 2-1, Detroit shaded Toronto 2-1, Vancouver routed California 11-5, Buffalo topped Minnesota 4-2 and Philadelphia turned back Pittsburgh 3-1.

In Saturday's other games it was Montreal 9, Detroit 2; Chicago 3, Philadelphia 1 and St. Louis 6, Los Angeles 3.

Wayne Maki scored the three-goal hat trick and added a pair of assists and Dale Tallon had two goals as Vancouver swamped California.

NIT—meet without a script

NEW YORK (AP) — It was the kind of week that had the fans bemoaning the loss of the cheerleaders. Then came the saviors—St. Bonaventure and Bill Chamberlain.

The 34th annual National Invitational Tournament was being called a collection of losers teams that failed to make the NCAA national championships.

And for most of the games in Madison Square Garden, the lack of super teams or superstars was evident. The show was stolen by a high-spirited bunch from Hawaii.

The Rainbows, making their debut in post-season play, arrived in the Big Apple with pineapples, leis, orchids, "hot pants" basketball suits and hula-girl cheerleaders that had the fans more interested in the intermissions.

Then Hawaii was eliminated in the quarter-finals and the fans wondered: "What now?"

Well, there were the Bonnies, who had to struggle to turn back the Rainbows. Most observers expected them to dispose of Georgia Tech and meet Atlantic Coast Conference power North Carolina in the championship.

It didn't quite work out that way. North Carolina made it to the finale with a 73-67 thumping of Duke but St. Bonaventure wound up on the short end of a 78-71 double-overtime score that sent Georgia Tech into Saturday's title tilt before 18,134 fans.

It didn't appear Tech and PORTER SIGNED

PITTSBURGH (AP) — The Pittsburgh Condors of the American Basketball Association said early Monday they have signed 6-foot-8 Villanova star Howard Porter, the Most Valuable Player in the NCAA basketball tournament.

WALKING CHAMP

ASBURY PARK, N.J. (AP) — Ron Daniel of the New York Athletic Club won the annual Capt. Ronald Zinn Memorial 10-mile Walking Race, on the Asbury Park Boardwalk Sunday in one hour, 17 minutes, 47 seconds.

North Carolina could match that game's excitement—and they didn't. Chamberlain did it all by himself.

The 6-foot-6 junior who started his basketball training in the streets of New York's Harlem, scampered away with the tourney's Most Valuable Player honors.

The softspoken star repeatedly brought the crowd to its feet with twisting, spinning lay-ups, and high, hanging jumpers as he dashed to a personal collegiate high of 34 points and directed a flurry of fast breaks that gave the Tar Heels an easy 84-66 victory.
